FOR TODAY....

UNIT BOOK

Unit book page 22 – we will be looking at “I intend to...”

There are two kinds of intentions. One is the ‘spur of the moment’ kind of thing (bottom of page)

As you can see (at the bottom) of the page we use the plain Let's for that. This does not mean that you are inviting someone. It is the form that we use. Have a look at the examples. Note that the 'I think' is in て form – so you are thinking this now.

EG 先生がいらない???よかった。じゅぎょうのとき、ねようとおもっている!

FYI If you think that you don't intend to do something it would just be the plain ません。EG テニスを しないと思っている。

The other kind of intention is more ‘important’, more ‘thought out’ more ‘long term’ at times.

This involves the plain ます + つもり です OR つもりだ

EG. ああ、 9月? 大学に行くつもりだ。

Note that you express “don't intend to” two ways...one is a bit stronger than the other

You can also say “I intended to...” and in this case the だ switches to だった

NOW.....Please look at the questions on page 23/24. You should have an answer for each. The ones in the box are for the more ‘spur of the moment’ ~ようと思っている。 intention. The other ones are for つもり – you will be using these in class tomorrow.
